It is now possible to include RAW files in Autopano and export the image sequence to GPX format and save it directly to a GPX file for your GPS. You can also use the new RAW to Giga converter to convert RAW to Giga. The RAW files can be acquired directly from the camera. So you can include RAW files in Autopano without copying to your computer. Gigapan 7.0

is an automatic 3D map generator for 3D mapping software and also useful for photogrammetry applications. Most of the information which should be in a 3D map is automatically generated by the software, which means the user does not have to do anything. The settings can be changed and/or additional information added manually. A 3D map can be generated from any number of overlapping images and used as a high resolution 3D model for 3D mapping. The key feature of the software is that it allows you to generate a 3D map in very little time. If the original images are already in the correct order, Gigapan will automatically generate a map and save the map as an.lwo file. If you have images in any other order, you can use the "Embed order" button and specify the order of the images to be used for the map. The software also has an option to map for stereo viewing as well as for orthographic viewing. The software is very stable, without any glitches or bugs and is easy to use. A tool for processing image sequences and 3D geometry files. Adjusts the values of each image (brightness, contrast, gamma, exposure, auto-exposure, auto-white balance, auto-histogram, auto-color) and then merges them into a master image and 3D geometry file. This can be used to correct exposure, whites, colors and brightness, or to combine several sequences of the same image into one image sequence. Gigapan Gallery is a gallery application that generates and displays the results of a search query across multiple images and image databases. It is useful as a small web application, to display a large number of images, to help organize images in folders, or to search for images across multiple image databases. Daz3D is a fully-featured 3D photo editor, which allows you to create 3D images of all kinds. Create 3D shapes, text, images, people, and objects; animate them; and save them to several file formats.
